2. What Are Cookies?

Cookies are small text files or similar technologies that may be stored on a device when visiting a website. They can support website functionality, security, preferences, performance measurement and, where implemented, analytics or marketing.

3. How We Use Cookies

The website may use cookies and similar technologies where necessary for operation, security and functionality. Depending on configuration, cookies may fall into the categories below.

4. Strictly Necessary Cookies

These may support security, session management, technical operation, fraud or abuse prevention, consent preferences and other essential functions. Where permitted by law, they may be used without prior consent.

5. Functional Cookies

Functional cookies may enable enhanced functionality or remember user preferences. Where consent is legally required, they will only be activated after consent.

6. Analytics Cookies

Analytics technologies may be introduced to understand website use and performance. Where consent is required, they will not be activated before appropriate consent. This policy does not state that any specific analytics provider is currently active unless technically implemented and verified.

7. Marketing Cookies

Marketing or advertising cookies may be introduced in the future. Where consent is required, they will only be activated after consent. This policy does not state that behavioural advertising technologies are currently active unless technically implemented and verified.

8. Third-Party Services and Google Maps

The website may link to third-party services, including Google Maps. Where Google Maps is provided solely through an external link, technologies used after following that link are controlled by Google under its own policies. Embedded third-party content should be reviewed if introduced.

9. Cookie Consent

Where required by applicable law, visitors will be provided with an appropriate mechanism to manage consent for non-essential cookies, including accepting, rejecting or adjusting relevant categories.

10. Current Cookie Configuration

The exact cookies used may change as website functionality, hosting, security tools or services are updated. F2S aims to configure non-essential technologies requiring consent so they are not activated before consent is obtained.

11. Browser Controls

Most browsers allow users to view, delete or block cookies and restrict third-party cookies. Blocking strictly necessary cookies may impair website functionality.

12. Personal Data and Privacy Contact

Where cookie information constitutes personal data, processing is also governed by the Privacy Policy. Questions may be sent to the Data Protection Officer at privacy@fs-globalholding.com.

13. International Users

Cookie and consent requirements vary by jurisdiction. Where applicable, the website is intended to operate consistently with relevant Singapore requirements and, where relevant, European or UK privacy rules.

14. Changes

We may update this Cookie Policy when website functionality, technologies, providers, cookies or legal requirements change.
